from the Principal...

To Tech's Forty-Niners;

One hundred years ago courageous pioneers fought their way across the American continent to convert our great Western unknown into a national economic and scenic asset of priceless value. Much of our present strength as a nation we owe to the work they did and to the courage, imagination and the willingness to dare which they wove into our national fabric.

To reason by analogy is dangerous, especially when carried too far. I do believe, however, that you forty-niners of the twentieth century are facing frontiers of atomic science as vast, as unexplored and as full of promise to the individual and to society as those frontiers conquered by your predecessors a century ago. Endless possibilities for social and economic betterment can result when an unlimited supply of cheap electricity fed by atomic power is made available to mankind. This, in turn, will cause vast advances in transportation and manufacturing. It will make more comforts available to all men and further reduce the amount of human drudgery. Tremendous advances in medicine and the conquest of disease await the application of new atomic tools yet to be developed. Better means of social and political living need to be discovered to keep pace with the new technological developments.

The old pioneers needed courage, imagination, fortitude and physical strength. You new pioneers need, in addition, a knowledge of modern science and technology. That Tech has given to you.

May the historians of the future have cause to honor the new pioneers.

PROVISIONING

Of course, no prospector would be foolhardy enough to venture out into the wilds without being equipped, and one of the first stops for the Freshman, after the first eight Delaney cards were filled out, was the local trading post . . . the G.O. Store. Here, or perhaps at Louron's, or its new competitor, T a m b e , was purchased that first architect's scale, those pencils, the Scotch tape, not to mention that first huge blue and white pin that so proudly said, "Brooklyn Tech."

The Frontier "Five"—"Zeke" Kaplan, "Jed" Burkhardt, "Jeff" Gittleman, "Slim" Morris, and "Tex" Schulman, a l t o washboard.

Starting the Journey...

Our provisioning done, we started our daily journey, seeking our gold. The daily routine—getting up when the bed seemed so comfortable; heading for the subway (with the nickel, which later became the dime); riding at a 45 degree angle, doing Math homework; coming out into the street with two minutes to go; the rush to get there before the hands on the big clock, (Old Faithful, atop the Williamsburg Savings Bank), showed 8:47; the final dash to “make” the bell.

We came—through snow, and sleet, and blizzard and fog—while the watchdog Attendance Office was always there to check. (Aren't they ever late?)

Ed Jacob starts his day; early to rise; “Vittles” and vitamins; He's off!; Spare a dime?; Another day, another scholar.

...En Route

The day began . . . First prospect: I.P. (which meant, notebooks and—movies!) Boy, what a school!

Mechanical Drawing! Pencil points somehow have a habit of being dull as wood, and just after they've been sharpened! (Rrrff! Lend me your eraser.)

Gym! How can you get inside these lockers? And what do you do if you forget your combination?

The first rush of school over, the pioneers turned towards clubs. Later, squads and teams helped fill the after-school craving for recreation.

They forged on, through the sandy wastes of Foundry, and soon they came to a wide crossroads: Choice of Course.

By Many Paths...

There were many routes toward our gold. And Tech gave much to help us along the trail. Till our fourth term, our caravan traveled together. Then came the split in the trail. Many courses lay before us. And by the Eight Routes the Technite sought his gold—the Aeronautical Course, with its Aero shops and planes; the Architectural Course, for the future designers of our homes; the Chemical Trail, with its labs and elaborate equipment; the Electrical Route, before our future Electrical Engineers; the newly formed Industrial Design Course; the Mechanical Trail; the Structural Route; and, of course, “the choice of many,” the College Prep Course.

Rustlers?

We came by many routes, and we have joined again to reach our gold. After four years along the hard trails of Tech, we are again together. Soon, we will receive our diplomas, and, our gold achieved, we will part again, to college, to industry, to the armed services, to seek the gold of the world without.

And along the trail, many an evening found the weary Forty-niners digging in as a difficult pass, in the form of Regents and finals, drew near. As they worked, they thought of the slogan of the pioneer, "Learn, or Bust!" Those who bore the motto, "65, or bust!" were soon "Busted!"

Then of course, there were those lucky few who had struck it rich, when the ol' honor certificates came 'round.

WORLD EVENTS

While we sought our gold, others sought theirs. We entered Tech towards the end of a World War. The world was seeking its gold—peace. And while there still was war, great men already planned for the peace. On April 12, 1945, a shocked world received the news that one of its planners, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, had died.

But the loss of a leader does not mean abandoning the trail. That same month forty-seven nations met to found a United Nations which was to keep the peace. Then, early the next month, came V-E Day. One part of the victory was achieved. There was much rejoicing. And three months later came V-J Day. But the rejoicing turned to awe. For in accomplishing that victory, we had unleashed the atom bomb—a bomb which, in one blow, killed 80,000 at Hiroshima.

Much else happened. New states were born. In the East, India became two independent states. And in the Near East, in the Holy Land, was created a new State of Israel. The world moved on. But though we thought we had reached our gold, peace was far away, with the gold of true peace yet to come.

We entered Tech in an age of planes and electric power. We leave it in the age of the atom.

And so, riding slowly along the deserted trails of Technical, on the final mile of the four long years in the great building, Joe Technite, wearing his battered eight-gallon hat, and astride his sagging half-pinto pony, reminisces. He thinks back on the seemingly inconsequential things that dotted his stay, the little things that made up a day in school. And so, the Senior slides from his mount and stands looking at the glorious sunset. His pallid plug neighs languidly, and Joe Technite remounts. "Well, let's get going, wagon wheels, and just keep rolling along. Thar's new gold ahead in them thar hills."

Tech's Girls of the Golden West

MISS JEAN FRITZ

MISS MARILYN MONTE

Let it never be said that the West grew up without the aid and inspiration of women. Many colorful and dramatic episodes of women's fight to rule the West are recorded in history. Among these more dramatic builders of the West were Annie Oakley and Belle Star, whose adventurous lives added vigor to the opening of the wild frontier. There were others, also, whose glory was not written in blazes across the skies of history, the women with the fortitude to keep their feet on the ground, and raise families and build a nation under seemingly impossible hardships.

In dedication to the women of the West, we present a modern day rendition of the Girls of the Golden West. To represent them, the Blueprint selected two girls from over one hundred entries in the "Girl of the Golden West" contest.

"Gold is where you find it," they say . . . and the real "gold" of TECH, aside from the knowledge garnered in the classrooms and laboratories, is often gleaned in the empty offices and classrooms long after the dismissal bell has re-echoed through the deserted corridors. After the majority of Technites have begun their journey home, the clubs, squads, and teams slowly begin to function and come to life.

The long black slate representing our four years at TECH is chalked with many records, marks, and awards. That's the Record that will stand. But the many students who, aside from the usual days' classes, found the time and the will to work together on a club or a squad with their comrades, carry away some of that "gold" . . . that invisible reward. They have added to their record at TECH a course in Social Living.

Those of us bent on the scientific angle have found unlimited opportunities among the extra-curricular activities at TECH: Those Friday afternoons with the Astronomical Society, especially that term in which the eclipse occurred! The enjoyment of working and constructing with the Amateur Telescope Makers. The practical work during the Wednesday afternoon meetings of the Automotive Club, and the thrill of experimentation with the forces of science in the Physics Club. Remember the limitless work possible in the Advanced Chem Club and Chemistry Society and the practical application of usage in the Hydropo-nics Club. Prospective engineers soon found themselves members of the Civil Engineering Club, where all fields of engineering found mutual interest. Tech offered three separate divisions for the radio enthusiast, the Advanced and Elementary Radio Clubs, and the Code Practice Club. The Television Club and those afternoons spent in the lab and Studio on the tenth floor! How many of us ever set foot on the Tenth, toured the WNYE studio, or served on the Page Squad or elite All City Radio Workshop? (Not "me," you say?)

Math

Survey Distribution

There were those clubs that were mined just right for us . . . the Stamp Club for us budding philatelists. The Magic Club, and that great assembly show they presented during our four years! Checkmate was the by-word for those among us who exercised skill in thought and action at the popular Chess Club. The majority of those "shutter-bugs" we knew belonged at one time or another to the folds of the Camera Club and their den in 3C1. The loyal Scouts among us rallied round the Scout Club to draw large crowds of Technites on "Co-Ed" days, in addition to the Jazz Club and Music Appreciation Society.

Squads and Clubs

For those of us who through successive terms could benefit through the many squads formed for the purpose of student aid, such squads as the English Help, Math Help, Chem, Physics, and Mechanical Help Squads were established. In addition the French and German Help squads counseled students, while their "better halves," the French-American and Dutch Dozen Societies, taught the cultures of those nations.

The art clubs that functioned produced fine material—the Thursday afternoon Allied Arts, the Poster Clubs, and the newly organized Mathkraft Club.

Then there were the "old standbys" for all of us. The calls of "off-post" from the SOS, the afternoons with the Longfellows, the Arista meetings, workouts with the squad leaders. The four Music organizations opened many fields of activity for the talented among us. How well we remember the programs by the Orchestra and Glee Club!

All of us began to realize the social problems around us today. Many attended the meetings of the Town Hall of Tech, or the Current Events, or One World Club. The discussions that had a wider range of thought were reserved for the Scribes who, although few in number, were always to be found engaged in writing and discussion on Wednesday afternoons.

The many religions found outlet in the numerous religious societies: Menorah, Hi-Y, and the Newman Club.

Many of us during these four years have gained much that is not now apparent, but which will in time prove priceless. We have fought and won a bit of that eternal "gold," which we will have when all else is lost. Now we will go on to sing our song, while life and voice shall last . . .

Then we'll pass and be forgotten with the rest.

Pay Dirt!

Captain Assiff and Mr. Cirillo

"General Adam Cirillo's powerful forces are on the march again!" That was the communication flashed to all opposition chieftains way back in September 1946. Supporting this warning, Cirillo's charges fought fifteen battles in the Fall campaigns of '46 and '47, capturing the scalps of every enemy leader.

Tribes Manual, Boys, Madison, and others were all trounced during the warfare, as Captains George Salvino, Gordon Fleming, Norm Carney and Ben Mione collaborated to accomplish these triumphs.

Following the treacherous path to victory as the '48 football front opened, Captain Charley Assiff, aided by Lieutenants Dick Alger, Bob Jasin-ski, Ray Weisgerber, Emil Schnell, Bob Domozych (and a rock-ribbed front wall composed of officers Bill Burkhardt, Bill Miller, Tim Holland, Bill Wetzal, Pat Nelson, and Vin Dioguardi) gained three quick scalps to continue their winning ways.

Golden Keymen

Prigge at the Base

Blazing their way through "Victoryland" with triumph after triumph, Coach James Wagner's pioneers reached "Borough Championship, Brooklyn Tech" when last heard from in June '48. Toppling eight obstacles while being stopped by two, The Wagnermen guided their caravan successfully as they were led by their sparkling scouts, Co-captains George Prigge and Sal Ferrare, who were aided immeasurably by Mike Morrongiello and Larry "Double No-Hit" Contillo.

Pushing as far as "Second Place, Brooklyn" in the spring of '46 with a record of ten skirmishes won and one lost, Wagner's men were temporarily repulsed the next year when they were defeated in three of their eleven battles. However, like true champions, they came through in 1948.

The Forty-niners, prospecting for gold, carefully extracted the precious metal from the ore. Mr. Henry Goldman, mentor of the Tequintet, has been painstakingly at work extracting the best from the basketball varsity to provide Tech with a lightning-fast aggregation that packs plenty of scoring power.

Up, Up, and Away!

During the 1947-48 season, the squad's chances were seriously impaired at mid-season when Bob Finkernagel and Rickey Ayala were lost to the team. Boys High tied the Hoopsters for runner-up honors, as they had done in 1946-47, and a playoff game was necessitated. However, whereas they had triumphed in '47, and despite the efforts of such stalwarts as Albie Weinstein, Bill Burkhardt, and the incomparable Harry Guthmuller, our Tequintet was downed.

Edged out by Lincoln for last year's boro title, Tech's gallant crew rebounded and took an early lead in this season's contest. Coach Connell was well fortified with Captain Bob Herzog, Eric Holmquist, Al Schraufnagel, Sam Rummel, Edwin Jacob and Marty Sellinger, along with Fred Mehlhop, Herb Diener, Charles Bodensstab, Ernie Haradopolos, and Sam Cassel.

The Harriers, coached by Mr. Weis, and the Track Team, under Mr. Cirillo, have both been on the upbeat since the appointment of their new mentors. Fred Weisz and Lou Cascino pace the cross-country squad, while also starring for Tech's Runners.

No wagon train ever had a better host of sharpshooters than Coach Trummer's Fall '47 City Champions, who were captained by Alan Jordan and Sherwood Chapman. The next season, sparked by Captain Josan Russo, the Rifle Team picked off the Whitney Cup, symbolic of the finest squad in the Met area.

Rocketing ball after ball from his racquet, in much the same manner as the Forty-niner's pistol shots rattled from his weapon, Captain Lennie Steiner, sensational schoolboy tennis king, led the Net squad of '46 as they blasted all opponents to garner the crown of City Champs. Then, in '48, Captain John Favre and Ralph Markson, two fine veterans, won second place with an inexperienced squad.

Sluggers Diorio, Dragotta, Ferrare

Coach Dorin's hardy band of battlers, thirsting for title honors, appeared destined for the top soccer slot as Fall '48 rolled around. Captained by veterans Dolf Rotfield and Helmuth Werner, the Booters aimed to better their previous high of second place.

No Forty-niner ever braved greater danger than Dick Michals, stellar All-Metropolitan goalie on the 1946 Hockey squad. Dick, who faced flying pucks and sticks, performed for the Pucksters in their closing season when they placed in the runner-up slot.

Strike after strike! Not of the gold variety, but of the ten-pin type, helped Mr. Krede's prospectors strike it rich in the form of a golden cup, emblematic of the mythical City Championship for two consecutive years. Jerry Holliber, Hank Kurtz, Joe Spellman and Marv Wolman all contributed towards gaining this prized trophy.

With Captain Paul Stone and Paul Einberg playing brilliantly, Tech's Wallmen, coached by Mr. Milde, completed a dandy season in '48.

Whereas the Forty-niners had no one to cheer their thrilling exploits, Tech's athletic achievements have been thundered to the high heavens by those cheering demons, Co-captains Manuel Kaplan and Phil Gittleman, aided by Stanleigh Morris and Richard Lane.

Activities . . .

Nearing The Goal

So you're a Brooklyn Tech Senior! (The thrill that comes once in a lifetime.) Like the original Forty-niner of a century ago, you've reached your goal. After four years in Tech you're ready to leave her memory-filled corridors. Tech has become part of you; in the four years since February 1945 you've attained maturity between her walls. You've learned manners, gained knowledge, developed yourself in your favorite sport, carried on your favorite hobby in a club at Tech, and spent a good deal of time working for the school on squads. Upon graduating you're leaving part of yourself behind at Tech—the part which you called your school spirit—the inner force, the same as that of the original Forty-niner, which made you continue forward, passing over the many obstacles along the way.

One day your class president announced the sale of Senior jewelry. As a Forty-niner, having reached your goal, you wanted to buy some. You had your choice of three types of Tech rings, a Tech key, and a graduation pin. You dug down into your monetary resources (or your father's) and came up with enough green stuff to buy your choice. When you finally received your jewelry, after months of waiting, you sported it around like the proud father of a new-born baby. If you had a steady girl friend, perhaps you let her wear it.

The day the Senior pins arrived was a day for celebration. You were now a full-fledged Senior and the blue and white pin showed it very plainly. Your girl friend was particularly proud of you now—especially when you let her wear your pin. (You just wouldn't be seen without that Senior pin.) It also came in handy as your passport through the Senior entrance.

Voila!

Tech Mezzanine

Whooping It Up!

"O-o-o-o-h! Doctor!"

Early in your Senior term, you had to decide what you wanted to do in the world and/or to which college you would go. If you were applying for college, you made a collection of college pamphlets a foot high. You tried for several scholarships and applied to a few colleges. Then you sat back and waited, with nothing short of wild anxiety and impatience. If you were going to enter industry, or some type of work, you probably visited Mr. Trimble's office for advice on obtaining a position.

When Senior elections came upon you, you found you had to make a hard decision. Would you vote for your friends or the ones who would make the best officers? You probably didn't know all the candidates personally, anyway, and you voted for your friends.

In your Senior year you, like the original Forty-niner nearing his goal, had troubles—troubles like deciding what kind of Senior prom you wanted to have. The main problem was deciding whether it would be formal or informal. "How would I look in a 'tux', anyway?" you thought.

Senior Night

There came a time when you wondered who was so kindly paying for your Senior tokens. There were the Senior photographs, the Senior pins, Senior night approaching, and the Blueprint being written for you, but you didn't have to worry very long. Even the original Forty-niner in those rough times was held up for his money. Soon your class president made another announcement. You had to pay for these things yourself under the title of Senior dues. Reluctantly you again dug into your (father's) resources and paid up.

As a Senior, you felt like a "big-shot." You were an officer on some squad or club. Perhaps you had some "pull" in getting into the lunch line. Well, if none of the above, you at least towered above the freshmen and you felt big. You wanted to go down an "up" stairway. You wondered how it would feel to ride in the teachers' elevator. You wanted a building pass for eight periods a day. You wondered if you could talk back to your teachers.

You were a Senior in a great school like Brooklyn Tech. It was important that you upheld her high standing. She was a part of you, just as you were a part of her.

She's your alma mater!
